

PHASE CHANGE PUBLIC FORUM:
SUNDAY 31ST MAY, 12NOON TO 5PM

PHASE CHANGE: an interactive, interdisciplinary laboratory exploring the impact of global warming in the Yarra Valley, installation view TarraWarra Museum of Art, 2015

Phase Change, an interactive, interdisciplinary laboratory exploring the impact of global warming in the Yarra Valley, will hold a Public Forum at the TarraWarra Museum of Art on Sunday 31 May, from 12noon to 5pm.

Luminaries from the fields of sustainable design, economics and Indigenous knowledge will debate issues highlighted by the Phase Change project, which is being conducted at the Museum, from 28 March – 8 June 2015.

Led by design academics, practitioners and students from RMIT, Phase Change is envisioning scenarios for sustainable and resilient futures, engaging directly with global warming and its ecological impacts at a local and regional scale, working across a range of design disciplines and related practices.
